WHICH RAUL TORRES SHOULD WE BELIEVE?

BUDGET CUTTER...

Raul the budget cutter told the Corpus Christi Caller Times he voted against the state budget — which included billions in restored funding for our schools — because the cuts “weren’t deep enough.”

CORPUS CHRISTI
Caller Times

If Scott and Torres must be compared — as the elimination of a local House district suggests they will — their votes on the state budget show an interesting contrast. Scott voted for the budget, describing it as painful but necessary. He lamented the deep cuts in education and social services, accepted blame, said he was best for Texas in the long run and that her election mandate to rein in spending required it of her. Torres voted against the budget, saying the cuts ($4 billion to education alone) weren't deep enough and therefore didn't fulfill his election mandate to rein in spending. The Caller-Times, “Our legislative delegation gave quite a showing,” June 8, 2011.

ELECTION YEAR POLITICIAN ...

But on the trail, Raul is handing out new campaign literature that fails to mention his vote on April 3, 2011, for an extreme budget proposal that zeroed out financial aid and cut $8 billion from our public schools.

You can see that vote for yourself in the official House Journal, Record Vote 262.

Raul Torres can change his story, but he can't change the facts.
